About

Professor Sarah Kenderdine researches at the forefront of interactive and immersive experiences for galleries, libraries, archives and museums. She is professor at the École Polytechnique fédérale de Lausanne (EPFL), Switzerland, leading the Laboratory for Experimental Museology (eM+) and is curator-at-large of EPFL Pavilions. Her upcoming book is Deep Fakes: A Critical Lexicon of Digital Museology published by Routledge (2025). Sarah has pioneered the framework of computational museology, a scaffold that unites machine intelligence with data curation, ontology with visualization, and communities of publics and practitioners with embodied participation through kinaesthetic and interactive interfaces. She has created over 110 exhibitions and major installations. Sarah currently (2024) leads USD10million in research grants.
